LONDON MURDER MYSTERY EXCITING GREAT INTEREST

Body of Woman Found in Cellar
Buried in Quick
Time
WANT PHILADELPHIA MAN
Dr. Crippen, a Dentist, Believed to Be Murderer—Dead Woman Was His Wife

London, July 16.—(Sensational disclosures are being made today in the case of Dr. H. H. Crippen, charged with murdering his wife.

The police and detectives of Scotland Yard are still of belief that the dead woman was the wife of Dr. Crippen and that she was murdered and buried in the cellar in the hope of hiding the crime.

Hear Screams and Shot
A woman shopkeeper today told the police that some time ago, possibly four or five months, she heard apparently in Crippen's home, the screams of a woman followed by a revolver shot.

Mrs. Crippen was last seen in February.

Was Strangled in Sleep
A three-hour post mortem examination of the dead body by experts of the home office proved conclusively as to the cause of the death of the woman. Her head, lower limbs and most of the bones are missing, but there are some indications, such as portions of clothing and a necklace adhering to the back of the neck, that the woman must have been strangled in her sleep. The internal organs will be subjected to a further examination. In addition to the search for Crippen and Miss Leneve, Supt. Forest and his force of Scotland Yard detectives are investigating the circumstances surrounding the death of Crippen's first wife.

Has Wedding Announcement
New York, July 16.—Disappointed that they are unable to find the body of Dr. Crippen, the police were still confident last night that he is somewhere on the high seas bound for this country.

Mrs. Theresa Hunt, sister of Belle Elmore, said today:

"I think the doctor sailed from Southampton as soon as he heard that Scotland Yard was looking for him. It is doubtful if he would ever return the continent, for the London police are in close touch with all the capitals of Europe."

Mrs. Hunt showed a wedding announcement, dated September 1, 1894, which said that Dr. H. H. Crippen had married Corine K. Turner and that the couple would be at home after September 20th at a St. Louis address.

London, July 15.—While the police authorities were exhausting their resources today to lay hands upon Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, an American, and his womanly physician, were examining the mutilated body of his wife with a view to determine the cause of death at which the murder was done.

Found Revolver in Cellar
The finding of a revolver in the cellar, gave rise this afternoon to the report that the vaulted artist had been shot before the body was buried in an unrecognizable mass and buried in quicklime in the cellar of the Crippen home at Hilldrop Crescent, North London.

Traces of Poison
It was reported also that traces of poison had been found. The doctors will present their theories as to the cause of death at the inquest to be held this afternoon.

It has been a long time since a murder in London has created such a sensation. The fact that the murdered woman and her husband who was charged with the crime are American has aroused the police to activity.

London, July 16.—The police of London are still without a clue as to the whereabouts of Dr. H. Crippen, or Ethel Clara Leneve, his typist, whom they are seeking in the belief that they may be able to clear up the mystery surrounding the body of the woman which was found badly mutilated in the cellar of the doctor's home in Hilldrop Crescent, North London.

Story of the Murder
London, July 15.—Scotland Yard is engaged with the murder of an American woman and today it cabled the police of the United States requesting the arrest of the woman's husband, Dr. Hawley Harvey Crippen, also an American, who is believed to have sailed for New York on Saturday last. The case is similar to that of the Charleston murder at Lake Como, Italy.

Both women were Americans and actresses who left their homes to meet death by violence in a foreign land and in each instance the police pursued the husband to the shores of his native land. Porter Charleston was arrested in Hoboken, N.J., but in the case of the home office proved conclusively as to the cause of the death of the woman. Her head, lower limbs and most of the bones are missing, but there are some indications, such as portions of clothing and a necklace adhering to the back of the neck, that the woman must have been strangled in her sleep. The internal organs will be subjected to a further examination. In addition to the search for Crippen and Miss Leneve, Supt. Forest and his force of Scotland Yard detectives are investigating the circumstances surrounding the death of Crippen's first wife.

Hope to Get Him
The London police have a definite charge against Dr. Crippen and propose to get him with the co-operation of the American authorities. Dr. Crippen, who is a dentist fifty years of age has made his home for some time at 29 Hilldrop Crescent, North London.

Some time ago his wife Belle Elmore, a vaudeville actress and treasurer of the Musical Attractions Guild, disappeared and subsequently a notice of her death appeared in the London papers. The fact of her death was generally credited, but there was more or less gossip among the women intimate with her and this finally reached the ears of the police.

The latter visited Dr. Crippen and the interview appeared to be satisfactory.

Saturday noon last Dr. Crippen disappeared and since then the police have not been able to locate him.

Yesterday a search of Crippen's home was made and the battered body of a woman was found buried in quicklime. It had been placed in quicklime and was burned beyond recognition, but the finding of the body together with other discoveries today has left no doubt in the minds of the authorities that the murdered woman was Mrs. Crippen.

Search for Crippen
Sir Melville MacNaughton, chief of the criminal investigation department of Scotland Yard, took the matter in hand and developments followed rapidly. The first thing the police did today was to cable to the police of the American ports asking them to search incoming steamers for Crippen who is described.

"The police believe that he sailed on Saturday for the United States. They state that he is accompanied by Ethel Clara Leneve, a French woman whom he had recently introduced as his wife. This woman the police say is believed to be dressed in mink attire. Before leaving home, Crippen sent out for a boy's suit and the police surmise that he is now being worn by his companion."

The indications point to early late plans to escape. A letter signed Belle Elmore was received by the 'Vaudeville Artists' which stated that the writer had gone to America on business. It was this letter which the police say was intended to cover up the crime. As it turned out it furnished an evidence of crime.

Belle Elmore's real name with one "L"; the signature affixed to the note was spelled "Elmore."

This discrepancy was noticed and shown to members of the guild by the police, and used by them in determining the matter of the woman's strange disappearance by the authorities.

Advertising Untrue
Then the advertisement appeared announcing that Belle Elmore had died at Los Angeles, California. An investigation was put on foot. The advertisement was found to have been untrue. It was learned today that when the officers visited Crippen they forced him to admit that his wife had

WILL INVESTIGATE Stated that Architect of Power House Made Unauthorized Expenditures

The city commissioners are in connection with the construction of the power plant. It was brought out at yesterday afternoon's meeting of the commissioners through a letter from Superintendent McNaughton, in which it was stated that on the $7,528 contract of Mr. Childs, he had been an expenditure of $10,000, exclusive of extra material, for extras ordered by the architect, R. V. Lines.

Commissioner Bouillon was surprised that there should have been any extra work and stated that he thought that things have been handled in a very loose manner at the power house. "It is a very peculiar thing," commented Mr. Bouillon, "if the architect can go down and order additional expenditure when he likes without the authority of the council or the commissioners."

Mayor Lee and Commissioner Butchart, speaking on the matter stated that they were not aware that there was any cause for additional expenditure.

Commissioner Bouillon has called in the assistance of the building inspector and it is probable that a visit will be made to the power house today and the matter inquired into.

CRUIKSHANKS MUCH PLEASED
Inspected 101st Fusiliers Last Night—Weather Prevented Sham Fight

Owing to the extreme inclemency of the weather yesterday the sham fight that had been arranged between the A. M. R.'s and the 101st Fusiliers, to take place from Alberta avenue 400 yards west of the 101st, was postponed; and the inspection of the 101st, which should have been held in the country, took place on Jasper Avenue at Seventh street, when Colonel Cruikshanks reviewed the regiment.

At 7.30 sharp the officers and men assembled in the Ammunition and after some preliminary manoeuvres fell into parade order; and marched up Jasper Avenue to Seventh street, headed by their band.

On arriving opposite the McLean block, they halted and the regiment proceeded to go through some intricate military manoeuvres. Colonel Cruikshanks having taken up his position a few yards up Seventh street. The regiment looked exceedingly smart, and were again through their drill of precision and accuracy, and a large crowd gathered, to witness the spectacle, which filled the sidewalks and overflowed into the roadway.

After a while the regiment marched to Eighth street, and Col. Cruikshanks changed his position from the north side of Jasper to the north and the street. Then to the music of the "Grenadier Guards" the whole force in parade order marched past the saluting point, led by Col. Edwards, every officer saluting as he reached the place. The officer inspecting, was stationed.

A file away up the street they halted and again marched past the point where Col. Cruikshanks, attended by his orderly, were established, after which they marched back to the Ammunition and the inspection was over.

Edmonton should really be very proud of her regiments. As it paraded last evening, the 101st looked as smart a volunteer corps as could be found anywhere; and the A. M. R.'s have already shown the city what useful work they can do.

Speaking to the Capital
Mr. Sigley stated that he was much pleased with the appearance of this part of the country, and paid particular tribute to Edmonton. Lake of Woods Milling Company Raises Price and Other Companies Follow

Winnipeg, July 16.—The partial failure of the crops throughout many parts of the prairie provinces and the consequent rise in the wheat market has had the inevitable result.

The Lake of Woods Milling Company announced an advance in the price of flour, and immediately following the announcement the Ogilvie Milling Company (Western) followed suit. The increased price consists of an advance of ten cents a bag and 20 cents a barrel or an approximate increase of about 3 1/3 per cent, over May and June prices. It is practically a reversion to prices obtaining in February and March.

CRAZY NEGRO KILLS FOUR

Tampa, Fla., July 16.—An Elliott, a negro crazed with cocaine, last night shot and killed with a shotgun his brother-in-law, Cecil Bryant, Rev. Jesse W. Avery of the First African Methodist Church, and Honey Clarke, the negro organist of the church. He also seriously wounded his wife, Eva Elliott and his sister-in-law, Mary Bryant. COMMISSION HAS NOT REPORTED
Lt. Governor Balyea stated to the Capital this morning that as yet he has received no word concerning the report of the Royal Commission which investigated the Alberta and Great Westways railway deal. His Honor, however, expects the report to reach him sometime next week. When it reaches him he will forward it to the government.

Premier in Calgary
Calgary, July 16.—Premier Sifton, Provincial Secretary Archie McLean and Mr. Robt. L. Shaw, M.L.A. for Stettler, were at the Alberta yesterday, but not on political business.

Mr. Sifton is on his way to MacLeod to see Mr. Malcolm Mackenzie, M.L.A. for Claresholm, who is very ill there, and from MacLeod he will go on to Banff to spend the week end with his family.

Mr. McLean is on his way to the Winnipeg Exhibition and Mr. Shaw is here on business.

Mr. McLean and Mr. Shaw were talking of crops this morning, but they had totally different tales to tell. In the Lethbridge district the outlook is not very encouraging according to Mr. McLean, but around Stettler, Mr. Shaw says, they will have bumper crops. It was a case of congratulation and condolence, Mr. McLean saying he was glad to hear that the north had not suffered and Mr. Shaw expressing sorrow that the crops in the south would be up to the standard.

EMPIRE BUSINESS SCHEME
Horne Payne Says Britons Should Learn to Invest Imperially

London, July 15.—The burden of Horne Payne's speech at the meeting of the British Empire Trust today was that the British people should not only think imperially but invest imperially. He described the great empire as a joint stock company in which the constituent nations were associated for mutual advantage.

During the last year Great Britain had invested $115,000,000 in the United States and had received $100,000,000 in return, which probably could be re-invested in Canada at from 6 to 10 per cent.

Horne Payne deprecated warnings about the enormous amount of money being invested in Canada and remarked that the United States gave no better security than the over-sea states of the empire.

VESUVIUS AGAIN ACTIVE
A Rain of Reddish Ashes on Villages Round About

New York, July 16.—A cable despatch to the Sun from Rome says: A slight earthquake was felt today at Belluno, northern Italy. The inhabitants were badly frightened, but no damage was done.

Mt. Vesuvius showed signs of activity early this morning. A huge column of dense smoke was emitted from the main crater and later a rain of reddish ashes fell in the villages of Ottaviano, San Giuseppe and Terzigno. The inhabitants of these places were thrown into a state of panic, being convinced that an eruption was imminent.

They abandoned their work and crowded into the churches, where they prayed until the rain of ashes stopped. Smoke is still coming from the volcano, and is now forming the characteristic pine-shaped column which heralds an eruption. There is alarm in Naples, where many are spending the night in the open. The rain of ashes began late this afternoon.

DOUBLE HEADER TO-LAY.

Owing to the gentle shower casting a gloom on yesterday's game, there will be two games to-day, the first at 3 and the second at 6.30. Moose Jaw will be the intended victims in both cases. However the Eskimos do not expect to get away without a struggle as the Robin Hoods are playing mighty good ball, and are liable to put one over on the talent. Starkard and Brown will pitch for the visitors, while Grady and Hickey will probably be Deacon's selection.

ZINGARI SHOWED CLASS

Canterbury, England, July 16.—In their first innings the Canadian Zingari cricketers had 135 runs, Lowsonborough 47, Southam 25, Marshall 24. Rathburn had 7 wickets for 6 runs and Henderson two wickets for 15 runs.

The performance of the Canadian Zingaris are exciting favorable comment. The fielding is especially good, in fact better than many first-class counties, while the wicket-keeping of Walter Wright is brilliant and would compare favorably with any performer in England. Now that the wickets are going harder, the batting will probably improve greatly.

One sporting writer in reviewing the performances of the team, wonders how long it will be before Canada is clamoring for test matches with Australia and the Mother Country.

MANY INDIANS
IN BASEBALL

Chief Bender Is the Most Prominent—Meyers of the Giants is a Red Man, also Zack Wheat

All along the American League circuit, wherever Bender, the Indian pitcher of the Athletics, steps to the slab or to the bat, the fans give vent to their ideas of humor by wailing whoops. Bender is no novelty now; he has been in the fast company for years, and, judging by his work so far this season, is good for many years to come. Nevertheless, the fans still josh him with merry whoops and doubtless will keep on whooping as long as the tall Indian plays the game.

The fans, however, can't help but find fault with the way in which they play if they only know that there are several other Indians in the fast circuits—Indians who have never said much as to their tribal ancestry and who are simply looked upon as black-haired, sun-tanned white men. For instance, Justin Clarke, the sturdy, hard-hitting catcher of the Cleveland team. Not many of the fans know that Clarke is a Wyandotte, a survivor of the once great Huron tribe, which fought for the French against the English and the Iroquois, and in later years during the rebel war, to Wyandotte, fought the pioneers and the buckskin followers of Daniel Boone.

Every one knows that Meyers, the burly catcher of the Giants, is an Indian, but how many know that Zack Wheat, the fast left-fielder of the Brooklyn, is an Indian from a Kansas reservation? Wheat is either a Kickapoo or a Potawatomi, and a rattling good ball player.

John Williams, who has been farmed out by the Giants this season, is an Onondaga from Wisconsin. Leroy, whom Boston drafted from the American association and then turned back again, is a full-blooded aborigine, Billy Phyle, who pitched for Chicago and New York a few years ago, is a Sioux, descendant of a famous Dakota chieftain. Bruce Norcom, Eastman, Newcombe, House, Peckman and Jude, minor leaguers of good class, are all Indians from various tribes.

Several Indian players, generally classed as brutish white men, are also in the game besides these. The red-skinned aborigine is a pretty wily boy when it comes to chasing the leather pill, and the Indian player, as a rule, is a decent, well-behaved young fellow.

JEFF'S GOOD LOOKS.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 16.—Tex Rickard, who arrives here yesterday, will go to Catalina Island about the same time Jim Jeffries does, and while he denies the report that the object of his present visit is to arrange for another championship battle, sporting men here believe that he has it in mind to bring Jeffries and Johnson together again about "Thanksgiving."

"Nothing further from my thoughts," said Rickard, answering a question regarding the rumors of a return fight. But a few minutes later he entered an automobile and sped out to Jeffries' ranch where he spent the night.

Jeffries came down and showed himself yesterday. He was nearly mobbed by curious crowds whenever he stopped. His face has shed all traces of the blows he received at Reno on July 4th.

WOLGAST AND MORAN

San Francisco, July 15.—Promoter James Coffroth has arranged plans for staging in San Francisco the last of August, a twenty-round boxing contest between Champion Wolgast and Owen Moran. Coffroth has the promise of the managers of both men but the date is uncertain because Manager Jones is not sure when Wolgast's arm will be strong enough. Coffroth says he has assurances that the fight game will be resumed in San Francisco just as it was before the recent spasm of anti-pugilism broke out. Coffroth also is considering putting off some fights in Reno where hotel and restaurant keepers, gamblers and merchants are eager to welcome another fight crowd.

AN OPPONENT
FOR JOHNSON

Smith of the Chicago White Sox Names Conditions under Which He Will Meet Smoke

At last the white inhabitants of America can rest in peace. The logical opponent for Jack Johnson has been found. The latest aspirant for the pugilistic laurel wreath is Frank Smith of Chicago. In the summer Smith pitches for the White Sox, and when the wintry winds blow, puts in his working time with the gentle pastime of moving pianos.

Speaking of the great fight which the Chicago Tribune says: "Mindful of his promise, Frank Smith gave out the result of his interview with his manager, Jim Block, relative to a fight with Jack Johnson. The new white man's hope has been persuaded to challenge Johnson and he and Block have made up their minds about the terms on which they will fight. There must be a side bet of $20,000, of which Johnson is to furnish $25,000. This bet is to go to the loser of the fight."

If the fight doesn't last more than one round Smith is to receive a bonus of $20,000 for wasting time in training. Johnson must agree not to hit him more than once in the same spot, and there will be some spots barred altogether, among them being the nose, the eyes, the ears, the mouth, the jaw the cheeks, the forehead, and everything below the neck. Smith will insist on being allowed the privilege of carrying a gun. Frank's father will be accepted referee and his brother as timekeeper.

"I know I can whip Jack," said Smith in his morning, and know I can do it in quick time. Of course it isn't always wise to talk about a fight of battle, but I don't think it will hurt anything in this case to let the public know what I intend to do. It will be a clean, in the ring, making it compulsory for Jack to step at least ten feet away from me during the opening round. I will carry a gun in my right hand and to make it fair will have my left hand tied behind me. As soon as the bell rings Jack will throw a baseball from my corner and hit Johnson in the shins with it. While his hands are occupied in rubbing his shins I will shoot him twice in the head, and I think it will be all over then and there. I am confident of my ability to come back and be as good as ever I was in my life. Right now I am practicing daily at hitting dark objects with a bullet and with great success."

DON'T CROW, CALGARY

The Calgary Herald says: "Edmonton has been endeavoring to get up to first place in the standing of the league and splash the fact in big black type so the world could see. They had that opportunity on Monday when the second series began and the teams were 100 per cent. And they didn't forget to take that opportunity, and, mercy me what a narrow escape they had of losing the chance. Now they are third with only three games played, and Lethbridge—little Lethbridge—which was several rungs down the ladder in the first series, has beaten them out for second place. Perhaps some time the league games will start over again, and they will have another chance on the first day to get their name at the top."

READY FOR THE CONTEST

Dudd Hart, the Minnesota light weight boxer, who is matched to box 15 rounds with Kid Johnson, of Fargo, N.D., in Strathcona next Friday, in working out daily in his gymnasium. Burt, who is the 120 lb. champion boxer and wrestler of Minnesota, thinks he will be able to make the colored boy travel at top speed. A very clever exhibition is looked for when these two glove artists meet.

COMMITTEE TO DECIDE

Philadelphia, July 15.—Whether a strike of the 15,000 conductors, trainmen, baggage men and yardmen employed on "Pennsylvania's" railroad lines east of Pittsburgh, Erie and Buffalo, shall be called, is now in the hands of a committee of six headed by President A. B. Garretson, of the Order of Railway Conductors, and W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

THE FIRST GAME
FOR MINTO CUP

The Montreal Challengers Meet the New Westminster Outfit This Afternoon

Vancouver, July 16.—All is ready for the first great contest for the Minto Cup and the world's heroics championship at New Westminster grounds tomorrow. The game will begin at 3.30 with the champion's strongest team in the field against the confident challengers. Ditchburn of Victoria, will be joined referee with Lionel Yorke of Vancouver. Individually and collectively, the Montreal team will go out on the oval tomorrow with no thought of defeat. The challengers paid their first visit to Queen's park yesterday for a little workout, merely enough to loosen up. The players had another light run today and de-whistle. The line up of the Montreal team is uncertain; it all hangs upon whether Frankie Hogan plays. Hogan has come along nicely since his Ottawa injuries, but the management may not want to take chances on him tomorrow as his ribs are all in a weak condition. Manager Davidson has 13 players in mind, and if Hogan plays, McKenna will be dropped. If Hogan stays off, then McKenna will play centre and Kane home man backing in. Here is the team with Hogan on:

Goal, Frank Tierney; point, George Finlayson; cover point, Jack O. Kane; first defence, Roddy Finlayson (captain); second defence, Charlie McKenna; third defence, Andy Amillon; centre, A.H. Kane; third home, Fred Scott; second home, Albert Dudge; first home, Henry Scott; outside home, Frank Hogan; inside home, George Roberts.

New Westminster has a heavier team. The Royals average 158 pounds per man, while the challengers will go 152 pounds with Hogan in the line-up. Hogan is the lightest man on either team, weighing only 135.

AT RENO—THE OLD SPORTS LAMENT

Lee Shipley in the Higginsville Jeffersonian.

"There was pride in Jeffries' bearing as he stepped into the ring, and he looked all fit and ready with the son-of-a-bitch swing, so among the cheering thousands how could anybody think that he wouldn't cop the money and obliterate the kid?"

Yet we prayed, "Lord help you, Jeffries, to annihilate this guy, help you wipe this pesky Cinder from the fretful public eye, help you from Sport's glowing pages to eradicate this Smudge, help you eat this Don Bon Duddy like a college girl eats fudge."

But the prayers of sports, I reckon, must not count for very much, for old Jeff fought like a cripple when somebody's swiped his crutch, and we saw, as rounds went flying, that he wasn't in the shape that a man would have to be in to annihilate the Ape.

Still the hope kept well within us, and we said, "He'll surely win. He can't help before the finish to get one laymaker. In Though it seems our good old war horse has an awful case of boils, by and by he'll make the yellow show up in the Leopard's spots." But when round eleven struck us we were asking, "Where's the steam which made old Jeff's licks as deadly as a falling cast-iron beam? Where's his adamant endurance? Where's his catapultic power? Where's the atavistic yellow we expected from the Snake?"

Still the hope that springs eternal kept our eyes glued on the strife while we all kept softly praying "Big Jeff to come to life, though we couldn't keep from knowing if he didn't pretty soon, we would have to place the laurels on the topknot of the Cooon."

Yet the awful fiftieth stunned us when we saw our Jeff go down like a giant of the forest by a black, tree, mado blow, like a tottering Gibraltar which the sea had underpinned, yet as helpless as a henhouse in an old-time Kansas wind?

HIS HENS HAD INSOMNIA;
HAD BEEN TAKING COFFEE*Troubles in the Chicken House Result of Feeding on Coffee Grounds Thrown Out.

Cedar Grove, N.J.—Max Reismann's flock of chickens is suffering from insomnia, due to eating coffee grounds thrown into their coop. Angry neighbours are buying morphine tablets, chloroform capsules, etherized corn, and cocaine griv and preparing to take charge of the feeding of the wretched sufferers. Reismann is begging for help in which to ascertain the effect of coffee substitutes, and the whole Union street section is in a turmoil. The question at issue is whether the chickens shall die or the neighbors of Reismann shall turn their lives upside down and sleep in the daytime.

The trouble has been on for four weeks. One day Reismann's servant emptied the coffee pot in the chicken yard. The chickens not only feasted on the grounds but also drank the puddles of coffee. That night there was a terrible to-do in the chicken house. Roosters crowed and hens cackled and laid eggs, and the roosts were deserted. Reismann went on three times thinking a weasel or wandering cat was in the pen. Nothing of the sort could be found. Six fresh laid eggs were in the nests and a hen was just going on.

Reismann could not understand it. Next day his flock seemed droopy. Shortly after sunrise it retired to the chicken house and went to roost, although the sun was shining brightly outside. The same conduct characterized the chickens each night afterwards, and the neighbors spent most of their time swearing.

Finally it dawned upon Reismann what the trouble was, and he and a veterinarian now are hard at work trying to get the flock back to normal habits. A setting of the night laid eggs hatched to-day. All the chickens are black notwithstanding the hens which laid the eggs registered white leghorns.

CASE OF OPIUM SEIZED
BY VANCOUVER CUSTOMS*One Hundred and Fifty Cans, Worth About 3,000, Discovered

Vancouver, July 16.—One of the most important seizures of opium made in the port of Vancouver has just occurred in the baggage shed on the C.P.R. dock, and the customs authorities and the C.P.R. are working on the case which opens up an entirely new theory as to how opium is smuggled into this country. Matters came to a head yesterday afternoon when Colonel Worsnop, surveyor of customs, and Mr. G. E. Graham, superintendent of the C.P.R., in Vancouver, were in conference. The seizure consists of 150 cans, which are valued at $2,800, and Customs Officer Cosgrove was the man who discovered them.

Last week a transfer rig took to the baggage shed a Chinese camphor-wood chest and the Customs officer accompanied it had it checked to Victoria. The check was issued, but later Customs Officer Cosgrove decided to look through the box as the rattle of cans could be heard when it was moved. On opening the chest a white wicker, the owner of which, it is claimed, is known, was found wrapped around some cans and a number of pillow slips marked "Empress of Japan" contained the remainder of the opium which was in five-tad cans, valued at $20 each.

Customs officers have for a long time been of the opinion that opium which got past the watchmen on vessels was smuggled ashore in safety suitcases to confederates on the dock who knew the routine, and from this source interesting results are expected. The opium found was to have been sold in Victoria, but the methods employed in getting it to the capital were crude because any customs officer would know that a camphor-wood chest must have come off an Orient steamer, and his official instincts being aroused a search would follow.

HAD HIS DOUBTS.

A doctor was attending a serious case of fever in a house where a Scotch butler was employed. On calling one morning he said, "Donald, I hope your master's temperature is much lower than it was last night." "I am no sure sure about that," replied the butler, "for he died this morning."

THE FORMULA OF "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Is On The Outside Of Every Box
For All The World To See

Every user of "Fruit-a-tives" knows exactly what is being taken. The formula of this famous fruit medicine is printed plainly on the outside of every box. We have stated many times—and now state clearly—that "Fruit-a-tives" is made of the juices of apples, oranges, figs and prunes, with valuable herb and nerve tonics and antiseptics.

Everyone knows that fruit juice is healthful—but perhaps some do not understand why this is true. Fruit juice consists of about 91% water, 8% of sweet principle, and 1% of a bitter substance. It is the quantity of bitter principle in fruit that gives the fruit value as a medicine. An eminent physician of Ottawa, after years of experimenting, found a method of increasing the bitter principle in fruit juice, thus increasing the medicinal or curative qualities.

The juices are first extracted from fresh, ripe oranges, apples, figs and prunes. By a secret process, some of the sweet atoms are replaced by the bitter principle. Then tonics and antiseptics are added, and the whole made into tablets, now known far and wide as "Fruit-a-tives."

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world that is made of fruit juices, and is one of the few remedies that have let their composition be known from their introduction to the public.

"Fruit-a-tives" is nature's stimulant for the liver, bowels, kidneys and skin. In cases of obstinate Constipation, Liver Trouble, Indigestion, Backache, Rheumatism, Headaches and Impure Blood, this wonderful fruit medicine cures when everything else fails.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold everywhere at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c., or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

A Former Edmonton Newspaper Man's Observations

Mr. T. A. Grigg Writes of Effect of American Immigration—Calgary "Grown Fat and Rich and Strong"—Edmonton Conservatives and the G.T.P.—The Coming of the Colored People.

There is little need to speak of the remarkable movement of population into the Northwest provinces, as the telegraph each day iterates the tale of the great influx. There never was so astonishing a rush for land as this has been, never so great and continuous a manifestation of land hunger, of avidity for possession as this movement has brought forth, and no description could adequately convey a picture of the eager, earnest, restless West as it is today.

Train loads of immigrants, with bags crammed with coin and ers filled with stock and implements, mark the daily invasion. Men, mostly line busy farmers, for there is a need of men and a great plenty of women, crowd the railway stations, throng the hotels and give sturdy animation to the scene everywhere. They literally besiege the land offices and the government land guilts were never so beset. They are mainly from the adjacent States. Perhaps adjacent is not comprehensive enough, as I met parties from the Texas Panhandle, from what used to be the Cherokee Strip, but is now Oklahoma, from Maryland, Virginia, Tennessee and Massachusetts and there are not adjacent to the Canadian Northwest.

So that the trend Canadianward is not peculiar to any state, but is general. There need be little wonder that those in authority among our neighbors view with alarm verging on dismay the steady exodus of the flower of their agricultural population, and wonder they make vigorous appeals to the executive at Washington to devise some remedy; no wonder that great schemes of land reclamation are being resorted to so that homes may be provided to stay the wandering feet.

It has not ceased to be a remembrance that Ontario once deplored the same thing. When Manitoba first opened her fenceless fields to settle, thousands of farmers, in the face of advice to go elsewhere, left Ontario for the new province and so steadily was the drain that those who had the interest of Ontario at heart feared for her agricultural prosperity. But they had this, but is general. The settlers were lost to Ontario. They merely moved on to populate one of her waste places and plant there the institutions of the upright and honorable people from whom they sprang. It was but another manifestation of the westward movement of this British nation which began when the progenitors of it broke the bonds of their captivity in the cities of the Moles and by the river of Geron and began their barbaric march across Europe to the North Sea, a desolation to all who opposed them until they found security in the British Islands, whence they have filled the world with the seed of the breadwinners of their kind. And this same that impelled westward these immigrants in the forgotten ages to a country where "their man was for-er" motives the race as by heredity and "Westward has been their cry. We did not need Bishop Berkeley to tell us that "Westward the star of empire takes his way," for that sentiment is embodied in the history of the race through the ages because as they went westward they carried empire with them. This has not been done by any other people. The nation has never lost any population to a foreign power. The people have forcibly moved about from one part of the Empire to another, and when they went outside of it, they set up dominion for themselves. It is true millions of them went to the United States, but that is not a foreign country when racial relations are concerned.

Settlers from the States

But the United States authorities are perplexed and strangely moved at the departure from their borders of so great a number. When thousands of men with millions of money pack up their traps and depart to a strange land it becomes a very serious matter to the country they leave. The United States regards this as a loss to the country, and these men are lost to the republic. We are foreign in a sense, but very much akin to them, and these men are really a loss to the States and it is not likely that they will ever return. Yet they have changed their flag, not their language, their thought or their way and they find the change agreeable. The land is cheap and fertile, law and order are upheld, there is fairness in the administration of public affairs. There may be rotters and blighters there, under the protection of high officials, but in the main there is honesty or an assumption of it, which atones for much, and the stranger within the gates is pretty well assured to use a gambling term of a square deal.

Then the Mounted Police interests the American. To him they are the embodiment of peace and security. He has never come across anything like them and he hears that they are altogether trustworthy and impeccable. He has learned that when any wrong is done the Mounted Police are certain to drop in and lead questions and pertinent enquiries. He knows that they will track a murderer to the end of the earth and drag him back for punishment, and with the misadventure and felon, whether he steal a bunch of sheep or a ham, loot a bank or plunder a corporation, it is even so. So in the presence of this force, the bad man from the South, whose will was law, put away his weapon as soon as he becomes to carry and comparatively useless, and when in heated discussion with him he makes a back-pedal movement, no one need fear, for it is not "the sign of the knife," when they have filled the world with the seed of the breadwinners of their kind. And this same that impelled westward these immigrants in the forgotten ages to a country where "their man was for-er" motives the race as by heredity and "Westward as useful overall, but wisdom has stripped them of all their sinister appendages.

What an American Gains

Yes the American gains much by coming to Canada. His is a great country, he admits, but there are some things he does better in Canada. In his country where government for the people exists the express companies have had enough power to prevent Congress from passing a Parcel Post Act, probably because Congress has a higher regard for the express companies than for the people. Yet there is a parcel post in Canada and a better one in England. In the American's country they sought for years for a government savings bank system. A Congress supposed to represent the people has just reluctantly passed such a measure, but putting the control of the savings of the people in the hands of the national banks and allowing two per cent interest upon deposits, which are restricted in a irksome way. Yet there is a government savings bank system in Canada, backed by government officials, which pays three per cent, per annum on the people's savings. The interest would have been four per cent, per annum if Parliament had had its way, but someone had to defer to that highly respectable body, the Bankers' Association, and the interest was put at three per cent. And there are many other things that the American has in Canada which he does not find on this side of the line. Accordingly, he is not so enthusiastic about the United States system as he was.

That he is a great and welcome gain to Canada, there is ample testimony. He brings with him a thorough knowledge of the agricultural profession and as a high farmer he excels. In his own country, notwithstanding the upheaval, there is fairness in the administration of public affairs. There may be rotters and blighters there, under the protection of high officials, but in the main there is honesty or an assumption of it, which atones for much, and the stranger within the gates is pretty well assured to use a gambling term of a square deal. Then the Mounted Police interests the American. To him they are the embodiment of peace and security. He has never come across anything like them and he hears that they are altogether trustworthy and impeccable. He has learned that when any wrong is done the Mounted Police are certain to drop in and lead questions and pertinent enquiries. He knows that they will track a murderer to the end of the earth and drag him back for punishment, and with the misadventure and felon, whether he steal a bunch of sheep or a ham, loot a bank or plunder a corporation, it is even so. So in the presence of this force, the bad man from the South, whose will was law, put away his weapon as soon as he becomes to carry and comparatively useless, and when in heated discussion with him he makes a back-pedal movement, no one need fear, for it is not "the sign of the knife," when they have filled the world with the seed of the breadwinners of their kind. And this same that impelled westward these immigrants in the forgotten ages to a country where "their man was for-er" motives the race as by heredity and "Westward

But while the American invasion is welcomed, there is an element of that Westerners look askance at, and this is the colored contingent that has followed the main army. There are met with all over the West, and they have a settlement of their own in northern Alberta, where several scores of them have secured land. They are from the Southern States and the remarkable thing is that they should give up to wilder life than the life of the white man. Yet there they are, and the whites look across their noses at them and wonder how this thing can be stopped. It would not be so objectionable if the northern Albertans did not use it as an argument against the north, for keen rivalry exists. If any man is found in Calgary so reckless as to assert that he meditates a trip to Edmonton or northern Alberta they immediately hoot him and say, "What's he go up to that Gaud for?" Why there ain't nothing but niggers up there and poor emule-one-hale-of-cotton niggers at that. It appears that the one-hale-of-cotton niggers of the south are the poorest specimen of a toiler that can be got, so Calgary turns up a supercilious nose at him, with the disdain that the newly rich display towards the struggling masses. The man, trembling at the peril he occupies, solemnly declares that he will not go to a region where the negro question may confront him, so they unobtain him, take his money and send him on his way, but someone has the irrigation ditch and serenely cry "Next!"

There is nothing in this colored question as the negro is not one in the thousand of white population in the Northwest. Yet because of the reasons stated it troubles the people of the north, and they ask for restrictions on this immigration. The assertion is that these men may be undesirable. A short time ago a negro and a white woman arrived in Edmonton. On account of admissions made by the negro the Mounted Police took charge of him. Presently a long, lean sheriff from Oklahoma arrived and said he wanted the negro for the murder of the late husband of the white woman in whose company he had come to Canada. So he sought an order of extradition. In court, when the judge asked the prisoner if he had anything to say, the latter pleaded, "Say, judge, you sure ain't going to send me back that to make a bone fire of me?" But Judge Taylor sent him back. The Edmonton point to this case as evidence that proper precautions are not taken in dealing with this colored immigration, and the authorities at Ottawa have answered that they can provide no remedy. Yet the Ottawa officials can put all sorts of obstacles in the way of honest artisans from Great Britain entering the country, can arrest them, confine them and deport them, seemingly at will. There is something dreadfully wrong somewhere or else an understanding has been arrived at by covert enemies of the Empire to shut out our own people from the country.

Calgary Waxes Great

But Calgary, grown rich and fat and strong, sits in the seat of the magnificent and laughs the laugh of mockery. For she has waxed great of late and is important, thanks largely to the Canadian Pacific Railway. This company, has been every energy to make Calgary the surrounding country populous and prosperous and as it has ample means to do so it has not failed. Probably the greatest irrigation scheme in the world is located near Calgary, where some twenty-five thousand acres of land, formerly included in the arid belt, but now provided with irrigation ditches, so that water can be had at will. Here are the ready-made farms, as they are called, with comfortable houses upon them and the crop in. They can be got on easy terms and have proved most attractive to the English settler, for whom they were devised by the company. But anyone can see that the farmers who desire them and they certainly look good to those in search of locations on which most of the work has been done. So that, thanks to the C. P. R., Calgary has become the centre of a very busy district and is growing into a great city.

What the C. P. R. has done for Calgary, the Canadian Northern, it is expected, will do for Edmonton. That company is not so favorably situated as the other, but the north has great confidence in Mr. Mackenzie, as rich as Harriman was, as able, as sound of judgment and as skillful as Morgan in the financial market, his pet scheme, the Canadian Northern Railway, will yet play a leading part in the life of the Northwest, and when it reaches from coast to coast, as it shortly will, it will be one of the greatest railway schemes in the world and among the most useful.

New Railroads Wanted

But the Grand Trunk Pacific also has the East, whatever part it may play in the political arena of the time will be the people of the West, it is a price undertaking and popular. They want railways out there, and they do not care who builds them or what they may cost. A politician in the West who should assist the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific on economic grounds, who should cavil at the cost or hinder what was a hardheaded undertaking for the country, would be promptly carried to the political morgue and laid out for identification, for he would ever after be unrecusable.

I remember being at a Conservative conference in the West some years ago, when it was proposed to combat the Grand Trunk Pacific agreement at the general elections, then close at hand. I and others pointed out that in fact of great money for railway communication throughout the new province, it would be a mistake to take such ground, that in any event the railway would have to be built and a campaign against it would result in disappointment and disaster. But this advice was not heeded, and the party went into the field resolved to lay out the Grand Trunk Pacific for speedy burial. Some months after the election, when we were and were after a great trial we bore in our honored dead from the field of defeat, we found that not one of the leaders survived. We had been with us as the Indian, who with his larrikin tied around his waist cast the nose over the smokestack of a moving locomotive, so as to stop and capture the train. And in the committee room at Edmonton that night, we all silently and reverently acquiesced when Joe Derosse, preaching the funeral sermon, said, "Boys, chastisement, was ze great election, you bet But ze Grand Trunk came along and struck us, and we is like ze little red bull I told you of, ze train caught and is now looking d—d blue. Yet ze people love ze grand Trunk. So we had better keep off ze track, or we look better. I think I'll go home and get a couple of tea and go to bed. I want to forget." We all went to bed, and did.

And now out there, there is no expressed opposition to the Grand Trunk Pacific, which has since become a reality fraught with much advantage to Edmonton and all the northern country. With no noise the prairie section has been hurried along, and it is now in full operation as far as Winnipeg, 666 miles, and beyond that point to Edmonton, 125 miles, is operated by the construction company, not having yet been taken over by the railway people. It passes through a splendid tract of country, the future home of many prosperous farmers, and is being rapidly taken up all along the line. Indeed, so eager have settlers been to secure locations that one has to go many miles back from the line to find land that has not been taken up. Beyond where the railway is in operation, for a couple of hundred miles and land seekers are using it to get into the Peace River country, where the government has thrown open a million of acres for homesteaders.

But to reach this favored country, where the next great rush of settlers will be, the ingenu must pack 150 miles or more over Indian trails, for there is no wagon roads, to find the plateau of the Peace. But both the Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Pacific have projected lines into that region and it will not be long before the grand prairie and beyond will have direct railway communication with Edmonton. Affairs are moving with extraordinary rapidity now in the west, and those who have not visited it for some years would not know it.

An Entertaining Manager

But little is heard in the east of the progress of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Mr. Hays does not court publicity, in fact dislikes to see his name in print, wherein he differs from those who think that in publicity there is life. And Mr. Chamberlain, the Western manager, has the same inclinations. Both attend closely to their duties, holding that they can better serve the public who they are in the public's popularity. Yet both will freely discuss the railway with anyone in search of information. Certainly, Mr. Chamberlain put new life into operations when he assumed the duties of the Grand Trunk Pacific, and fixed his headquarters at Winnipeg. He had his training under Mr. J. R. Booth, of the Canada Atlantic. Shrewd, far-seeing, venturesome and enterprising, Mr. Booth had built up a great fortune before he conceived the project of the Canada Atlantic, and he said nothing until he had his plans perfected.

Have you ever wondered why the Canadian Pacific line from Pembroke stops short at Egglewille? This is the reason: When it became known to the C. P. R. that Mr. Booth intended to build the Canada Atlantic to Depot Harbor, the C. P. R. officials invited him round to discuss matters. He went and found that his project did not meet with the approval of the C. P. R. people. They pointed out that if he did not have to encounter and suggesting to him the wisdom of abandoning his plans. But Mr. Booth had his own ideas and adhered to them. Finally they told him that he would have trouble, in the face of their opposition, in securing money in England to finance his project. "I have the money here," said Mr. Booth, tapping his wallet, which contained real money. That ended the conference, and the C. P. R. became immediately busy building up of Pembroke.

There is a place up near Whitney known as The Gap, a defile through the rocky hills. There was room there for one line of rails. The C. P. R. wondered why Mr. Booth was not buying himself around Pembroke. They found out presently. As soon as Mr. Booth saw that his opponents were intent on building on the line he had selected, he and young Chamberlain went up to the Gap. With the celebrity that comes of determination, they got in a gang of laborers and track men. They cut and hauled ties, they made their grade, packed in the rails and laid them, and when the C. P. R. engineers came along they found the Gap occupied. There was not room for another roadbed. To go around meant a wide and costly detour, not to be thought of, so the C. P. R. abandoned the idea of building in that direction, but they did complete their line to Egglewille, and had the satisfaction of crowding the Canada Atlantic a couple of miles out of town.

The man who figured in this interesting undertaking, which would make a fine history is now the manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, and it is not likely that he will neglect anything that will add to the prestige of the enterprise with which he is connected.

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"I have very severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the swelling would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me that I would never be able to work again. I tried several specialists, but soon found out that they wanted my money and did nothing for me. I was then told to go to Dr. Kennedy. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He then told me to go to Dr. Kennedy as he had had treatment from them himself and knew they were sound and skillful. I wrote them a letter and Dr. Kennedy sent me a letter saying that my progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, a continued treatment for three months longer and I was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only say that I was a man again before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never lose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment."

About Town

Grace Methodist Church Sunday School will hold their annual picnic on Thursday afternoon next, the 21st to the park just south of the new exhibition grounds. Transportation will be by buses, the first to leave the church at 1:30 sharp. A good program of sport will be provided and all parents and friends are urged to be present.

Mrs. Dr. Crux, who for many years was a missionary in Japan, will give an address in Grace Methodist Church on Sunday evening next. Her subject will be one of great interest to those who have been following the history of events in this rising nation.

The mounted police yesterday arrested two young men in connection with the recent theft of jewelry from the residence of Mr. Baxter, near the packing plant. As the mounted police had no direct evidence to offer and as each of the young men swore that the other was the guilty party, they were obliged to release them. It is believed, however, that one of the two is responsible for the theft.

The most fusillads left on the 9:30 T.P. express this morning for Cooking Lake where they will be in camp until Monday evening, returning to Edmonton by the Grand Trunk train which arrives at 8:15 p.m. The boats on the lake have been lent to the regiment by the owners, and the regimental band is going with them so it is expected that, providing the weather is fine, the outing will be very enjoyable.

LAURIER SPEAKS AT MORDEN, MAN.

Shows That Interests of the West and East Are the Same

Morden, Man., July 16.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the party accompanying him through the West had a great reception yesterday afternoon. Speaking in the skating rink to a crowded audience, Sir Wilfrid spoke of the remarkable progress of the West, and in comparing the progress of the West with the East he said: "To westerners it is nothing that towns should trouble their population in sixteen years, but if this was the case in the East, our houses would swell with pride. Although there is a difference in this respect between the East and West, the difference is only in spirit; there is no antagonism between the East and West because the interests of one must be the interests of all."

"In the East we are often told we are spending too much money on the West. We are even told that the tariff is not made for the benefit of the East, but for the benefit of the West. They say that we spend money profusely on matters concerning Western Canada. We shall continue to do this, because it is not for the benefit of the East or West but for the benefit of the whole country."

Hudson Bay Railway.
Sir Wilfrid made an important pronouncement concerning the Hudson Bay Railway. "It has been a boon

Jack! How is it that Mrs. Brown can get a quiet horse and drive her wily friends and you cannot get one safe for me. Well, my dear Brown, I can't say. Horner's Livery and you phone 1224 and order one. Oh, Jack, what a treat.

which the people of the West have long looked for, and at last it is going to be a reality. We are taking the first step this very year. This railway is especially to benefit the West, but the whole of the country will reap great advantage from it."

Sir Wilfrid gave his reasons for the building of the new route. "The main reason," he said, "why we are building the Hudson Bay railway, is that it is the shortest route to the market of the world. When it is completed, the journey from the provinces of Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Alberta to Great Britain, which is the market of the world in these modern days, will be shortened by half. The people in the East tell us that this railroad will take away the trade which at present is going through the River St. Lawrence. Our answer is that it is not sufficient for the great Canadian people to have only one outlet to the sea. We must have two, two and three if needs be, and no one can deny that such will be for the benefit of the people of Canada as a whole."

Mr. MacDonald on Navy.
Sir Wilfrid was unable to deal, owing to a lack of time, on the question of the navy, but in his presence another member of the government, E. M. MacDonald, made some important statements. Emphasizing the necessity for a navy, he said: "It is true we live in times of peace, but there are disturbing elements in the world, and we must be absolutely prepared for any emergency. We cannot afford to stand idly by when a conflict goes on between two nations in which our interests are endangered. The commerce of this country has trebled in the last fourteen years and we are going to do nothing to protect our trade routes. Canada has trebled in the last fourteen years and we are going to do nothing to protect our trade routes. We are united with our leaders in that we should have a navy which shall be an ally of the greater navy of the Mother Land. It will stand for the interests of Canada, but in time of danger, the Canadian navy will be found side by side with the navy of the Mother Country, fighting the battles of the Old Land."

COMMISSIONERS AWARD TENDERS

'Scots Firm Gets Contract for New Fire Hall—Need More Cash for City Hall

The consideration of tenders for a number of civic utilities occupied the attention of the City Commissioners at their regular meeting yesterday afternoon. McIlwain and Co., Strathearn, will be given the contract to construct the new fire hall, their offer being $16,680 with tower or $14,080 without. There were seven other tenders for this work. Smith, Freeze and Co. will carry out the installation of plumbing and heating apparatus for $1,540, while the Freeze Metal Co. will supply sheet metal for $520.

No decision was made in the tenders for improvements to the city hall, all the offers being in excess of the grant made by council. The lowest tender was $7,858, made by the Edinger-Nesbitt Construction Co. The appropriations for this work was $5,000. The commissioners will report the matter to the council with a recommendation that the grant be increased.

The commissioners decided to erect a tower on No. 3 Station instead of No. 3, so the five tenders for the work will not be considered.

E. Manders was the successful tenderer for the water mains, while the Evans Construction Co. will be awarded the contract for the cast iron bridge on the production of satisfactory bonds. Commissioner Bouillon suggested that before a report on the offer of the Edmonton Heat and Power Co. to supply power to the city be presented to the council that the proposition to establish a municipal plant on the Athabasca be further investigated.

Commissioner Bouillon will arrange definite plans to handle the sale of water as a municipal undertaking as a means of doing away with the troubles between the water department and the city watermen.

Chief of Police Lacey, and City Solicitor, Down, recommended that the recent case against H. R. Hurrey charged with selling liquor without a license, be amended to the District Court. "The Commissioners decided accordingly."

A request of Fire Chief Davidson that he be given authority to negotiate on equipment for the new fire station was granted.

LONDON MURDER MYSTERY

not died in California. He then said, according to detectives that he and his wife quarrelled and that following the quarrel she disappeared. The police refuse to accept this explanation because of the fact that the woman was found to have left her jewelry and money behind. Pursuing their inquiry, the authorities discovered that Dr. Crippen was born at Coldwater, Mich. He was educated in Indiana, at Los Angeles, and completed his medical studies in Michigan, Cleveland, and New York City. He practiced in Detroit, San Diego, Cal.; Salt Lake City, St. Louis and Brooklyn, as an eye and ear specialist. At one time he managed a patent medicine concern in Minneapolis and in Toronto.

He married Belle Elmore in New York. The woman's maiden name was Blackmontski. The two came to London four years ago. Mrs. Crippen is described by acquaintances as about 35 years old.

May Face Two Charges
New York, N.Y., July 15.—While a fruitless search was being made today for the liner Lusitania, which arrived in this port, for Hawley Crippen supposed to have murdered his wife in London, and while the British Capital and its environs were also being searched for traces of him, it was discovered in New York that mysterious circumstances surrounded the death of Crippen's wife, as well as that of his second, Belle Elmore, whose body has now turned up in a London cellar.

It has been generally known that Dr. Crippen was married before he wedded the good looking actress, whose corpse was found buried in quick time beneath their home in England. But he was, and the manner of the original bride's death is being looked into. He may have two charges to face if he is ever captured.

There was located today in Winfield, Long Island, W. R. Bell, a brother-in-law of the missing dentist and patent medicine man. Mr. Bell is not now and never has been satisfied with the reports that Dr. Crippen gave of the death of Mrs. Crippen number one, who was Bell's sister, and he has set to work to verify the statements of several American cities to probe the circumstances of her passing.

Lived in Toronto
Toronto, July 16.—Dr. Crippen, wanted in London, England, for the murder of his wife, known on the stage as Belle Elmore, resided in Toronto, from 1896 to 1898, was one of the chief officers of the Canadian Manxton Co.
